

Anna is an NIHR funded PhD student evaluating the implementation of a primary care domestic violence training programme. Anna's work relates to our Identification and Referral to Improve Safety (IRIS): Improving the response to domestic violence and abuse project.

She has an interest in translational research, qualitative methods, gender, health inequalities and participatory approaches to research.