

This theme implements methodological innovations – novel ways of carrying out research – to improve the way in which we work, for the benefit of patients, the public and the NHS. By addressing known methodological limitations in the way applied health research is currently carried out, this theme works to develop and test novel methods to enhance the efficiency, timeliness and usefulness of applied health research.

Watch a short film introducing the CLAHRC research theme featuring Theme Lead Professor Jan Van der Meulen