

Professor Johnson's research interests are in the clinical and social needs and the treatment outcomes of people with significant mental health problems such as psychosis and bipolar disorder. Professor Johnson is a Principal Investigator in the CLAHRC's mental health theme working on a project to develop and test a self-management smartphone app for early psychosis.